Hundreds More Jailed In Birmingham

Negro Equal Rights Drive Stepped Up

At Least 867 Taken Into Custody; Comic Dick Gregory Seized

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Hundreds of Negro school children with comedian Dick Gregory in the lead marched off to jail Monday in the biggest civil rights demonstration the South has ever seen.

More than 700 demonstrators—many carrying blankets, toothbrushes and school books—marched from a mass meeting at the 16th Street Baptist Church into the arms of waiting policemen who had set up roadblocks with fire hoses at both ends of the block.

They were herded into police wagons and school buses and driven to the Birmingham jail. Almost simultaneously, about 150 Negroes carrying signs protesting racial discrimination appeared in front of stores in the downtown area. Police promptly arrested them.

By late afternoon, as an uneasy calm settled over the city, authorities had made at least 867 arrests—bringing the total arrested in the month-long protest to more than 2,300. Monday's jailings easily surpassed those last Thursday during similar demonstrations.

White Reporter Arrested
Those arrested Monday included a white reporter and scores of students—the youngest appeared about 12—who skipped classes to take part in the massive drive to crack the city's rigid segregation barriers.

They joined hundreds of fellow demonstrators already sleeping shoulder to shoulder on concrete floors in three jails in the city.

Monday's demonstrations came while Burke Marshall, the U.S. Justice Department's chief civil rights trouble shooter, conferred with leaders of both sides to seek a truce and ease the crisis that began building April 3.

The Negroes have demanded four concessions as the price for calling off the demonstrations: Better employment opportunities; desegregation of downtown lunch counters; release of the estimated 1,200 Negroes still in jail from earlier arrests; and creation of a bi-racial committee to work out plans for gradual desegregation of public schools.

The Negroes began pouring from the church, where Martin Luther King Jr. addressed the estimated crowd of 2,000, with Gregory in the lead.

Stopped By Police

The Negro crowd led his group up to a police blockade where he was halted and asked if he had a parade permit. He replied no and police told him to turn around.

"No, we'll stay here," he said and the police herded them to waiting paddy wagons.

The others followed in groups of 20 to 50 and officers situated about buildings with walkie talkies alerted police who swarmed in the area.

Catholic Transfers Jam Missouri Schools

Parochial Transferees Registered

Instigator Says Goal Achieved, Cancels Protest

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—A program to enroll Roman Catholic parochial school students in public schools spread across Missouri Monday, and its instigator recommended that it be called off as having achieved its purpose. The movement was in protest of legislative action killing a bill to permit parochial and private school students free use of school busses.

Clarence J. Blume of Jefferson City, chairman of the Cole County Catholic parents committee said: "Confident that we have achieved the limited purpose we sought to attain, we recommend parents who have enrolled their children in public schools return them to parochial schools."

"We are certain that our wholly spontaneous demonstration has brought to the attention of all fair-minded citizens of Missouri the injustice of refusing to parochial school children transportation at public expense."

Reaction To Plan Awaited

There was no immediate indication as to the probable response to his plea.

The mounting protest prompted Rep. Harry Goldberg, D-Kansas City, who sponsored the bill to provide transportation for all students, to say he was taking the pulse of the House Judiciary Committee which gave his measure the ax last week.

A Roman Catholic bishop and the Missouri governor, John M. Dalton, agreed the parents were within their legal rights in enrolling the children in the public schools.

Probably a dozen cities and smaller communities had been affected by the revolt-inspired transfers, and some public school administrators had to act fast to provide room for the added pupils since the protest started last week.

Hundreds Transfer

Blume said he felt the demonstration "has also made clear what an organized effort in the future could mean for the state of Missouri and its fiscal burden."

The public high school at Westphalia in central Missouri received 400 students from two Catholic schools. At Tipton, a town of about 1,200, the high school got 100 transfers.

A total of 447 parochial grade school students out of 1,100 in this capital city, transferred to the public system. At nearby Linn, Mo., an additional 100 students forced classes into the cafeteria and a vocational agricultural building.

Prosecutor Gains Own Conviction

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — City prosecutor Robert J. Paul secured a conviction against himself Monday in traffic court.

"I parked on Eden Avenue where the signs said 'No Parking Because of Street Cleaning,'" Paul told Judge George Heitzler.

"I was in the middle of a thunderstorm and I didn't think anybody would be sweeping streets in the rain," he explained. "But I got a ticket anyhow."

"Case dismissed," the judge ruled.

"Oh, no, your honor, I plead guilty," said Paul.

"All right, you're convicted," the judge replied.

No sentence was imposed.

Kennedy Drops Adm. Anderson As Naval Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy jolted the Pentagon on Monday by dropping Adm. George W. Anderson Jr. as chief of naval operations.

In a less-surprising action, he kept Gen. Curtis E. LeMay as Air Force chief of staff although the appointment was for only one year, rather than the customary two.

Kennedy's decisions—on recommendations made by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara—were a closely held secret until announced by the White House.

There had been speculation for some time that LeMay was on his way out, purportedly because he bucked administration decisions to hold back on the RS70 bomber and drop the Skybolt bomber-launched missile.

But there had been no breath of rumor that the big, handsome Anderson was in any difficulty.

He testified before a Senate subcommittee probing the controversial TFX fighter plane contract and said he favored the Boeing Co. model rather than the General Dynamics Co. version which was adopted by McNamara. But so did LeMay.

Kennedy named Anderson and LeMay, each 56, to two-year terms on the Joint Chiefs of Staff. LeMay's term ends June 30 and Anderson's on Aug. 1.

For the new naval chief, Kennedy picked Adm. David L. McDonald, three months older than Anderson and former commander of the mighty 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

McDonald, a native of Maysville, Ga., now making his home in Hollywood, Fla., took over only a month ago as commander in chief of U.S. naval forces in Europe and adjoining waters.

White House spokesman Andrew T. Hatcher said Anderson—sometimes called "Gorgeous George" because of his imposing appearance—has been offered a position with the government.

Hatcher said Kennedy hopes Anderson will accept the post which Hatcher said he was not at liberty to disclose.

Scott Says Japan, Europe Have Secret Steel Cartel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Monday that a secret cartel exists between steel producers in Japan and Europe to divide the American market.

Scott said this could affect the foreign economic policy of the United States and could "have a bearing on our treaties with countries in the cartel."

In Japan, a spokesman for a leading steel firm denied any knowledge of such a cartel, but said seven steel companies had made certain agreements on exports to the United States in order to avoid excessive competition.

In West Germany, the Economics Ministry at Bonn said there was nothing known there of any such cartel.

Speaking at the annual coal convention of the American Mining Congress, Scott said the Justice Department is investigating to see if any U.S. laws have been violated. He said officials of the Commerce and State departments also are aware of the problem.

"Recently the United States has been hit by a wave of dumping—the practice of unloading surplus merchandise at prices below those charged in the producer's own country. It has been happening in steel, copper, brass, cement, chemicals, man-made fibers, pharmaceuticals and other products," Scott said.

"The cartel apparently now covers exports of small-diameter steel pipe, but discussions are under way between Japanese and European producers to include also wire rods, bars and hot and cold rolled steel."

In Washington, the Treasury Department said it rejected complaints of several American steel firms that hot-rolled carbon steel wire rods from Japan were being sold at less than fair value.

Dominicans Map Strategy For Invasion

President Confers With His Military Leaders, Cabinet

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — President Juan Bosch met with his military leaders and cabinet Monday to map final, undisclosed plans for an attack on Haiti. The Haitians countered on the diplomatic front by demanding an immediate session of the United Nations Security Council to consider the Dominican war threat.

The Haitian demand for a Security Council meeting "with the maximum urgency" was delivered to the U.N. secretariat in New York by Haitian Ambassador Carlet R. Auguste. It appeared likely the council would meet on the request within 24 hours at the latest.

Some observers speculated the Haitian appeal to the United Nations might force Bosch's timetable ahead. But informed diplomatic sources said word had been relayed to the Organization of American States that he would await the outcome of hemispheric action before deciding on an actual attack.

The Army, Navy and Air Force chiefs met with Bosch for nearly an hour Monday morning reporting on the country's military preparedness. The President then met with his cabinet, apparently to make the final decision on invading the neighboring Negro republic.

The seriousness of the situation was exemplified by a statement in Washington by Gonzalo Fazio of Costa Rica, chairman of the council of the Organization of American States, that war between Haiti and the Dominican Republic "is a distinct possibility." Fazio said after a 2 1/2-hour OAS meeting that the council had resolved to remain in permanent session.

Following his meeting with the military chiefs, Bosch ordered new tank-backed infantry units to the frontier. He also ordered an anti-guerrilla battalion from Constanza to take up position at Mao, a small village near the north coast, a few miles from the Haitian town of Cap-Haitien.

Dominican paratroop units were ordered to reinforce infantry troops sent Sunday to the Barahona area facing the road route to Port au Prince.

Bosch told UPI: "We are moving additional forces to have complete control of the frontier for any eventuality." He also said the Dominican Republic had received a pledge from Costa Rica of full support for any Dominican effort to topple the present Haitian government.

It was estimated that trained Dominican infantry strength outnumbered Haitian regulars more than 3-to-1.

An Army spokesman said the Dominican armed forces were now in "attack position" the length of the border separating the two countries on the Caribbean island of Hispaniola, just 50 miles from Fidel Castro's Cuba.

U.S. Marine Corps units with a U.S. Navy task force at sea within 30 miles of Port au Prince were ready to move at "10 minutes notice" to evacuate some 1,000 American residents in the Haitian capital if fighting broke out.

The British sent a Royal Navy frigate to international waters just off Haiti and the Admiralty in London said it would be used to evacuate British nationals if that became necessary.

Reds Execute U.S. Lieutenant In S. Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Communist guerrillas seized an American Army lieutenant in rebel-infested back country near Saigon and executed him and two South Vietnamese companions, a military spokesman reported Monday. He was the 73rd American killed in the war here since 1961.

Waiting in ambush along notorious Route 13, the Communists blew the American's jeep off the road, then executed the trio while they apparently still bled from wounds, the spokesman said.

The usual practice of the Communist Viet Cong rebels is to kill the wounded enemy.

The name of the American officer was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

A South Vietnamese military patrol found the bodies.

Three other Americans have been killed on Route 13 while carrying out their tasks of advising South Vietnamese forces in the bloody war against the Communists.

Four other Americans were wounded in weekend fighting and two more were injured in accidents.

Giant Book Of Art

AMSTERDAM, the Netherlands (AP)—An art book described as the biggest in the world—7 by 3 feet—has been unveiled here. It has only five pages—three of stained plastic glass, and two of printed pages—and was sold for $5,225.

The former Republican vice president, defeated for the presidency in 1960, is moving to New York to join the law firm of Mudge, Stern, Baldwin & Todd.

He has said, "I am going to New York for the purpose of practicing law and not for practicing politics."

Nixon's fifth-floor apartment will make him a neighbor of Rockefeller, who left Sunday for a Venezuelan honeymoon with his bride, the former Margaretta Fitts Murphy. They are expected back in two weeks.

Rockefeller's 12th-floor apartment in the building at 810 Fifth Avenue is being enlarged to include rooms in an adjoining new apartment building at 812.

The work is expected to be completed next fall. In the meantime, the Rockefeller family plan to live in the executive mansion in Albany.

Laos Premier Calls Peace Chances Slim

Leftists Threaten To Open New Drive

VIETIANE, LAOS (AP) — Declaring the chances for keeping the peace in Laos very slim, neutralist Premier Phouma said today he has no confidence in the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

Even as he spoke up against the Pathet Lao threatened to launch another drive similar to the one a year ago that forced the United States to rush troops to nearby Thailand.

Souvanha returned discouraged from a truce talks Saturday night with his half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, head of the Pathet Lao. Not only did the Pathet Lao hand him a stiff set of demands, it shot up two control commission helicopters in the Plaine des Jarres area, scene of the negotiations.

"I have no confidence in anybody, including Pathet Lao," Souvanha said in response to questions submitted by The Associated Press.

Peace talks began April 14 to halt fighting between neutralist forces loyal to the premier and the Pathet Lao guerrillas. The two were allies against the rightists in the civil war that theoretically ended with the Geneva accords of last July.

But Gen. Kong Lee's neutralist forces were attacked on the Plaine des Jarres in March. He charged the Pathet Lao was trying to squeeze him out of northern Laos.

Souvanha said he is studying the proposals made by the Pathet Lao.

These demand formation of mixed police in Vietiane, where Deputy Premier Phouma Nosa-van's rightist forces are in control, return of the veto to each party in the coalition regime, withdrawal of control inspection teams from the Plaine des Jarres, and removal of all rightist forces from Pathet Lao areas.

William Faulkner Awarded Pulitzer Prize Posthumously

NEW YORK (AP) — William Faulkner's last work, "The Reivers," a lighthearted novel of his native South, won him posthumously Monday the 1963 Pulitzer Prize in 1955.

President Kennedy said of him in eulogy: "Since Henry James, no writer has left behind such a vast and enduring monument to the strength of American literature."

Top prize in the newspaper category, the meritorious public service award of a gold medal, went to the Chicago Daily News, for its series presenting all points of view on the controversial subject of birth control services in the public health programs of its circulation area.

It was the third Pulitzer Prize for the Daily News. Cited specifically by Columbia University trustees who announced the awards were staff writer Louis Wille, reporter Horton Trautman, and state capital correspondent Henry M. Hanson.

Favored in advance for the drama award had been Edward Albee's Broadway hit, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" a caustic drama on faculty, sex and politics at a small New England university. It had won citations from the New York Drama Critics Circle, the American Theater Wing, and the American National Theater and Academy.

A member of the Pulitzer Prize advisory committee, who declined to be quoted by name, said: "There was no row, no hint of one. The committee simply felt that no play was worthy of an award. This was a poor year."

The last time the Pulitzer Prize for drama was omitted was in 1951.

Established in 1917 in a bequest to Columbia University by the late Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the New York World, the coveted awards in journalism, letters and drama are made annually by the university trustees, upon recommendation by an advisory committee of newspaper editors.

The journalism awards carry a prize of $1,000 divided equally among multiple winners, except for the meritorious gold plaque award to the winning newspaper. The other awards carry prizes of $500 each.

The Pulitzer Prize for news photography for 1963 went to News-Rondon of La Republica, Argentina, for his picture of a priest aiding a wounded soldier during a two-day revolt in Venezuela last June. It was distributed to newspapers around the world exclusively by the Associated Press.

Other journalism awards were: Local reporting under deadline pressure—reporters Sylvan Fox, Anthony Cannon and William Longo of the New York World-Telegram and Sun, for their coverage of an American Airlines jet plane crash March 1, 1962, at Idlewild Airport in New York. The crash killed all 95 persons aboard.

Local reporting without deadline pressure—Oscar Griffin, Jr., for his work as editor of the Pecos, Tex., independent in publishing the first articles that led to the also are aware of the problem.

Agreement Reached On Philippine Claim

Conferees Bolster Fee Collector Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate conferees dropped their insistence Monday on turning over a $73-million fund to the Philippine government in final settlement of World War II damage claims filed by Filipinos.

Instead they worked out with House conferees a plan to continue individual payments with a strict prohibition against any of the money ending up in the pockets of Washington sugar lobbyist John A. O'Donnell or any other "attorney or agent."

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate group, called it a more effective bar than the original Senate ban on fee collectors.

The compromise was part of a $15.5-billion supplemental appropriations bill which also contains $450 million for President Kennedy's accelerated public works program and $15 million for a start on civil defense shelters.

The bill was returned to the Senate and House for action on the conference committee's dovetailing work. Both chambers must accept or reject the compromise measure in full, without making any changes.

Aside from one unsuccessful fight by Senate Republicans to trim $200 million from the $450 million public works fund, the big battle was over the Philippine war damage payout and stood to receive anywhere from $150,000 to $450,000 for representing claimants in the final distribution.

At the urging of Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., the Senate voted to turn the whole final installment of $73 million over to the Philippine government and let it handle the claims.

Under this proposal the Manila government was to be asked to give assurances that none of the money would be paid out in fees to O'Donnell or any of his former associates on the old Philippine War Damage Claims Commission.

Fulbright charged that O'Donnell began lobbying for a new claims bill immediately after the commission folded up in 1951 after paying out $400 million to claimants. He said O'Donnell distributed more than $9,000 in 1960 campaign contributions to Congress members.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., and others opposed Fulbright's lump-sum payment plan, chiefly on the ground that U.S. taxpayers might save from $5 million to $25 million by processing the claims here. McCarthy said it would be found that some claimants could not be located or were dead.

Civil Rights Suit Is Filed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department took legal action Monday to prohibit the sheriff of Rankin County, Miss., from using threats or violence in an effort to discourage Negro vote registration.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said a suit filed in U.S. District Court in Jackson, Miss., was based on charges by three young Negro men. They said they were assaulted when they tried to register at the Rankin County Court House in Brandon, Miss., on Feb. 2.

The suit said Sheriff Jonathan R. Edwards Jr. and two unidentified men, believed to be his deputies, struck the Negroes several times without warning and then forced them out of the court house before they completed their voter registration forms.

Kennedy said similar efforts to discourage Negroes from registering to vote probably would be made unless forbidden by court order.

Intimidation or coercion of persons seeking to vote is outlawed by the Civil Rights Act of 1957.

Monte Woolley, 'Man Who Came To Dinner,' Dies

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — Monte Woolley, 74, the bearded bachelor actor who became famous as "The Man Who Came To Dinner," died Monday of a heart ailment.

He had been on the critical list at the Albany Medical Center since April 6.

Woolley, born Edgar Montillon Woolley in New York City, was nicknamed "The Beard" because of the bushy chin foliage he wore throughout his life.

His most famous role was as Sheridan Whiteside in "The Man Who Came To Dinner." He originated the role in the Moss Hart-George S. Kaufman play on Broadway and later portrayed Whiteside in the movie version of the play and a television adaptation.

Although the public thought of Woolley as a vitriolic, white-bearded patriarch with fierce blue eyes and a cigarette holder clenched between his teeth, he insisted he actually was "mild-mannered and easy to get along with."

"Being typed as a man with an acid tongue in pictures has just about ruined me," he once confided to UPI.

Funeral services were scheduled for 11 a. m. EDT Wednesday at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where Woolley had lived off an on since he was a boy of three.

Services will be held in Bethesda Episcopal Church with the Rev. W. Benjamin Holmes officiating. Burial was to be in Greenridge Cemetery.

Udall Praises Coal Industry Price-Holding

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall praised the coal industry Monday for holding the price line and even reducing prices while costs of most other commodities were rising.

Speaking at the annual coal convention of the American Mining Congress, Udall pictured a bright future for the industry.

"By bucking the general inflationary trend . . . and by making the sacrifices and the investments that have enabled you to double your productivity in the space of a decade, you have won the respect and confidence of many consumers," he said.

An estimated 2,000 coal officials heard Udall cite the coal industry for aggressiveness in capturing a large share of the electric power market and increasing its exports.

He told the assemblage that the Kennedy administration is pushing for enactment of legislation to enable coal companies to obtain rights of way for operating coal pipelines as common carriers.

U.S. Rep. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., warned that coal's bright potential in the electric utility market will be destroyed unless plans for federal-sponsored power plants are sidetracked.

Saylor said public power is "even more odious" because the coal industry is taxed to help pay for its own destruction.

'Rocky' Takes Bride On Tour Of Ranch

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The honeymooning Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and his bride spent the first full day at his Monte Sacro ranch Monday horseback riding, pruning fruit trees and touring in a jeep.

The 54-year-old governor and his bride, the former Margaretta Fitter Murphy, 36, arrived in Venezuela on Sunday and plan to stay about two weeks.

Ex-Congressmen's Trial Is Postponed By "Fever"

BALTIMORE (AP)—The conspiracy and conflict of interest trial of former congressmen Thomas F. Johnson of Maryland and Frank W. Boykin of Alabama was postponed Monday because another defendant, William L. Robinson, said a high fever would prevent him from remaining in court.

U.S. District Court Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen recessed the trial after noting Robinson was acting as his own attorney and "should be given every consideration."

Robinson said his physician had advised against his attending court and that he had been fighting the fever since last Thursday.

The postponement interrupted Johnson's description of what he considered his legal activities for savings and loan associations.

Johnson, on the stand for the second day, spent the morning trying to show that fees he received from Robinson and J. Kenneth Edlin, a savings and loan promoter, were for work as legal counsel.

The government maintains the fees were for using his influence as a Democratic congressman in behalf of Edlin, who was indicted and later served five months for his conviction on mail fraud charges. Edlin is also on trial on the conspiracy charges.

Johnson testified Monday he took a $1,000 retainer fee in 1960 from Edlin and Robinson to do legal work for the First Colony and First Continental Savings and Loan associations.

Johnson said his duties as counsel included reviewing Maryland insurance laws to see if it would be possible to set up a life insurance plan for shareholders in First Colony and First Continental, drawing up a charter for a new corporation, studying a loan application of $2.3 million for an apartment house project in Prince Georges county and representing Edlin in Jamaica, where a hotel construction loan was pending.

Johnson said that a trip he took to Jamaica with Edlin in 1960 was a business trip paid for by an Edlin-controlled firm, first Continental Mortgage Co.

The former Eastern Shore congressman introduced into evidence his check for $306.02 reimbursing Edlin for plane fare for him and his wife to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., in December, 1960. The Jamaica trip was taken from Florida.

Referring to a $500 contribution Robinson made to Johnson's campaign fund in 1960, Johnson said he did not ask the Miami attorney to contribute. Johnson also denied that the contribution was given to make a speech in Congress defending savings and loan firms.

Operating Room Blast Kills Four

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) —Four persons, including two infants and the two doctors operating on them were killed and 12 others were injured Monday in the explosion of an oxygen tank in the operating room of the Manuel Arriaran Children's Hospital here.

A fire which broke out after the explosion was quickly quelled. The blaze was confined to the operating room, which was badly damaged.

The tragedy here coincided with reports from Temuco, in southern Chile, that one person was killed and five others injured in a boiler room explosion at a hospital there.

The Temuco explosion blew off the roof of the hospital, inaugurated only last February, and blew out all the windows in the building.

There was no immediate official explanation for the oxygen explosion here.

The gravely injured included four doctors and eight nurses.

Convicted Rapists' Appeal Is Rejected

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland Court of Appeals ruled Monday that two Montgomery County brothers sentenced to die for the rape of a 16-year-old girl were not entitled to a new trial.

It said their motion, based on a claim of newly discovered evidence, was not filed within three days after receipt of the verdict as required by court rules.

James and John Giles, both of Spencerville, had appealed a Montgomery Circuit Court order denying their request for a new trial. It was filed Nov. 15, 1962, 11 months after the two youths were convicted of rape and four months after the Court of Appeals had upheld their conviction.

The Supreme Court, meanwhile, has refused to review their conviction.

Nasser Cuts Short Visit To Algeria

ALGIERS (UPI) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser joined 300,000 Algerians Monday in paying final tribute to this country's slain foreign minister and then cut short the remainder of his visit.

When Foreign Minister Mohammed Khemisti died Sunday it was decided Nasser would extend his visit until the weekend, but Monday night's announcement changed this.

Baltimore To Elect City Officials Today

Pressman's Entry Arouses Interest

BALTIMORE (AP) — A defeated Democratic nominee running as a Republican for the same office perked up Tuesday's election of Baltimore municipal officials.

It had been a dull campaign despite a second comeback try by former Republican governor Theodore R. McKeldin to be mayor again.

Then on April 18, a company once headed by McKeldin's running mate for comptroller wound up in court involved with an insolvent savings and loan association. W. Rae Dempsey resigned as comptroller candidate and McKeldin daringly reached across the political fence for Hyman A. Pressman.

Well known for years as a self-appointed public protector, Pressman lost out for the Democratic nomination for comptroller March 8 by 1,045 votes.

It required two speedy court decisions for Pressman's name to go on the Republican ballot. A lower court ruled him ineligible, but the state court of appeals voted 4-3 for the situation unprecedented in either city or Maryland politics.

The unique switch not only sparked interest in the elections, but most politicians felt it enhanced the chances of McKeldin to return to the mayor's seat he occupied 1943-47. After serving two terms as governor, 1950-1958, he lost for mayor in 1959.

The Democratic winner, J. Harold Grady, became a judge last December. Phillip H. Goodman, former state legislator, stepped up as acting mayor from City Council president and won nomination for a full four-year term over eight opponents.

McKeldin is 62 years old and Goodman 48.

Thomas D'Alessandro III, 34-year-old son of a former two-term mayor and congressman, is the Democratic nominee for council president against Robert J. Gerstung, 30-year-old college political science instructor.

Integrationists On Trial Today At Cambridge

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — More than 70 integrationists are to go on trial Tuesday in Dorchester County Circuit Court on 147 charges of disorderly conduct, failure to obey an officer and attempting to incite a riot.

The group includes both whites and Negroes who were arrested in Cambridge during picketing demonstrations over the past six weekends in which they protested segregation policies in the town.

They will be represented by three attorneys, Louis Redding of Wilmington, Del., Fred Weisgal of the American Civil Liberties Union staff in Baltimore and Tucker Dearing of the Baltimore chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The largest group of arrests in the series of demonstrations came on April 6, when city and State Police arrested 37 white and Negro integrationists in a march on the city jail. The demonstrations have been organized by the Civic Interest Group of Maryland.

A favorite target of the demonstrators has been Airpax Electronics Inc., which the demonstrators say uses discriminatory hiring practices.

In preliminary hearings, those arrested asked for jury trials.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Interior subcommittee approved Monday a bill to change the name of Harpers Ferry National Monument to Harpers Ferry National Historical Park.

The Senate already has approved it.

The National Park Service defines a national monument as a nationally significant landmark, structure, object or area of scientific or prehistoric interest.

State Sen. Pine Award Winner

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Newsmen covering the 1963 Maryland Legislature considered Sen. James A. Pine, D-Balto County, the most effective individual member. The Tawes administration had displaced him as majority leader.

The Maryland Legislative Correspondents Association voted Pine its annual award as "legislator of the year" primarily for his role in two areas.

He was instrumental in authorizing for the University of Maryland to build four undergraduate branches around the state.

He was a leader against legalizing interest rates of 1½ per cent a month on retail credit accounts. In this contest, Pine was opposed by his successor as floor leader, H. Winship Wheatley Jr. of Prince Georges.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution.

Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form, called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

North's slam try in today's hand was unwarranted. Although his hand is originally worth 15 points in support of hearts, when East bids four clubs North should devalue the king of that suit. His holding becomes reduced to the equivalent of a minimum jump raise, and when South bids four diamonds North should merely return to four hearts. His cue bid in spades pushed the partnership to the five level, and it required South's very best efforts to avert disaster.

West led the queen of clubs and, when this was allowed to hold the trick, he continued with another club which declarer ruffed. As a precautionary measure, South played a small heart to the king in dummy and East dropped the queen. Trumps were quickly abandoned, and declarer began to work on the diamond suit.

Declarer led the ten of diamonds from his hand, and West found that he could not shut out dummy's nine of hearts from winning the fulfilling trick. If he ruffed low, dummy would overruff; if West trumped with the ten of hearts then North's nine would be high.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

New Treatments For Perennial Problem

Each year seems to bring more and more helpful treatments in dealing with the old problem of acne-troubled teen-age skin.

Should families concerned with this problem take the extra time and expense to seek medical help? Why not just let things run their course, as people have done for centuries?

Surprisingly, the latter course is often followed by people who wouldn't dream of sticking with "the old ways" of dealing with other infections or diseases. Of course acne isn't as serious as tuberculosis or polio, perhaps not even as serious as the common childhood diseases for which medical help is sought. The potential danger, in many cases, of permanent scarring of the skin; the mental anguish and social problems it causes many a youngster — these DO seem serious enough to welcome any possible help that's available.

Help for troubled skin lies in three approaches: internal medication; external care; and proper diet. The doctor — preferably a skin specialist if one is available — is the only one who can properly determine the first of these. His advice on the other two will be much surer than the hit-or-miss efforts of the average child or parent.

Many of the general methods of treatment are well-known — the importance of cleanliness; the avoidance of certain kinds of food. Many new treatments are not well known; and there is danger in specifying them when it may lead to perilous experiments at home.

In general, the dermatologist may prescribe internal medication to correct glandular activity; antibiotics to combat infection; and vitamin supplements. Other treatments may be used in especially severe cases.

Frequent washing with a prescribed soap or soap substitute is vital. External care may also include medicated lotions; perhaps a tinted one for daytime, some thing different for night care. Unless cosmetics are carefully chosen and limited, they can be one of the worst causes of spreading infection.

Dieting, rather than following rigid charts, should simply be aimed at sensible, balanced meals. Avoidance of chocolate, rich and greasy foods is unusually helpful.

A specialist who has treated many cases knows which methods to try, how to increase or decrease dosages to suit the case. The often startling improvements shown under such care are convincing proof that it's worth the effort to find and follow good medical advice.

Balanced diets suitable for the whole family are contained in my booklet, "Your Beauty Diet." Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10c to me, John Robert Powers, in care of this newspaper, for your copy.

Handy Shopping Guide to Series E U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

No matter what their denomination, all U.S. Savings Bonds have these things in common: They're one of the safest and most widely held investments in the world—owned by tens of millions of American families.

They're replaceable in case of loss by fire, theft or plain carelessness.

They return $4 for every $3 invested, at maturity.

They're cashable at any time without red tape (and you can defer the tax on the interest until the Bond is cashed).

They do the double job of helping to make your individual future, as well as your country's future, secure.

Buy the ones that fit your budget — at your bank, or through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Keep freedom in your future with

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

Makes an ideal gift for graduations, birthdays, communions, bar mitzvahs or any occasion when you want to be especially nice to someone. Including yourself. Sells for $18.75

This is an increasingly popular size with millions of American families. If you'd started buying one every month ten years ago, you'd now have $5,230. On sale at all times for $37.50

In 7½ years you can turn this Bond in for a crisp hundred dollar bill. You'll be getting 3½% interest and your government's thanks. You can buy it for only $75.00

This one is tailor-made for the investment of bonuses, tax refunds and other windfalls. In 7½ years it grows into a tidy $200 nest egg, yet costs only $150.00

Grandfathers can give one of these Bonds to eight grandchildren (or eight of them to one grandchild) in any one year without having to pay the gift tax, because the outlay per Bond is only $375.00

Very few people can buy one of these out of every paycheck. But lots of businesses buy them as a good safe investment for company surplus funds. And widows who suddenly find themselves with a large insurance check can do no better than to put part of that money into one of these king-size Bonds.

Issued for larger investors, whether individuals or institutions (yes, corporations, partnerships, credit unions, pension funds and any other group except commercial banks may own Savings Bonds — and many do).

Gay 90's Train To Chug Along Track In Clay Co.

CLAY, W. Va. (UPI)—Passengers will be able to ride on open platforms of the "Gay 90's" era when the steam-powered Buffalo Creek and Gauley Railroad chugs along 20 miles of track in Clay County on a day-long excursion June 1.

The excursion is another part of the county's Centennial year activities in cooperation with the Centennial Commission.

Three modern gondola cars fitted with benches will be supplied by the B&O Railroad and bring up the rear of the train will be a BC&G caboose sporting a bright colored awning.

Officials said the train will make frequent stops during the trip, which begins at 10 a.m. EDT, so that tourists can film the train and surroundings in the Buffalo Creek valley. The trip will cost $6 per person and dinner will be served at Widen.

A similar excursion by BC&G in 1960 attracted railroad buffs from 18 states and Canada, officials said.

The railroad has received recognition as the largest common-carrier railroad in the nation still operated exclusively with steam locomotives.

The line hauls nearly 30,000 cars to and from the big Clinchfield mines at Widen and a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad connection at here. Officials say the engines frequently haul trains containing more than 70 cars.

The tour will begin at the line's Dundon shops across Elk River from Clay, will go to the Georgia-Pacific Corp.'s big sawmill at Swandale, stop over at Clinchfield's Widen mines, and conclude at Dundon about 5 p.m.

B&O Veterans Plan Convention

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—About 400 members of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Veteran Employees Association—all with 20 years or more service—are expected to attend a three-day convention here beginning Wednesday.

Principal speaker at a banquet Thursday to be presided over by Monongah Division superintendent G. W. Shaw of Grafton, will be B&O President Jarvis W. Langdon Jr. B&O operations and maintenance vice president C. E. Bertrand of Baltimore, a former Monongah division chief, will also attend.

Also meeting during the 33rd annual convention will be the association's women's auxiliary.

'He's Headed For The Bench, Governor'

Senate President William S. James, left, seems to get a kick out of House Speaker Marvin Mandel's quip to Governor Tawes as the governor signs a bill creating a new circuit judgeship for Harford County. James, of Harford, was reported in line for the new judgeship but has disclaimed any interest in it. It was one of 116 bills signed by Tawes yesterday. (AP Photofax)

Special 'Watchdog' Auditor To Check W. Va. Welfare Funds

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Legislature leaders gave wholehearted approval Monday to Gov. W. W. Barron's decision to appoint a special auditor to keep a financial eye on State Welfare Department spending.

Also endorsed by lawmakers was Barron's recommendation during a seven-minute address that a legislative interim committee be named to study the problems of the Welfare Department.

One Republican leader said such a committee should be invested with subpoena powers to do any good.

Barron addressed a joint House-Senate session following the opening of an extraordinary session to find $457,000 to operate two major welfare programs at current levels through the rest of the fiscal year.

But, at least one Democratic senator volunteered that Welfare Commissioner W. Bernard Smith should be replaced.

"I was a bit disgusted with the governor's speech," Sen. Dan Dahill, D-Logan, said. "It makes me feel bad to see the governor refuse to admit he made a mistake" in retaining Smith as welfare commissioner.

"Smith isn't a bad fellow," Dahill said. "He just doesn't have the common sense to handle a job of this magnitude."

House Minority Leader George H. Seibert of Wheeling, who said the retention or dismissal of Smith "is not a legislative problem," noted that the governor "called attention to the need for more money to continue welfare at their current levels and he (Barron), of course, pointed out that welfare is a very delicate subject matter."

"However, I did not hear any suggestions as to why we have these current financial problems," Seibert said. "I would like to see this gone into by the Legislature."

Seibert also said he thought the Legislature "should adopt some resolution before leaving here to help improve conditions and atmospheres regarding the Welfare Department."

With regard to a study committee, Senate Minority Leader John Carrigan, R - Marshall, said he thought such a group should have the power of subpoena, "not just have a committee for the sake of having a committee."

"If you're going to investigate, do it right," Carrigan said.

As for the special auditor, Carrigan said he thought "we had a legislative auditor to do that. It seems an awful lot of people are auditing the Welfare Department and I can't see what the special auditor can do that they can't."

Workers Repair Road To Airport

City crews have put the road to the Cumberland Municipal Airport in good shape for this weekend's Sports Car Races.

Roy Maphis, maintenance foreman, told the Mayor and Council yesterday that the ditch along the road has been cleaned, shoulders repaired and that potholes in the road have been filled. Twenty-nine tons of blacktop were used, he said, in repairing the road.

Liquor Price Measure Held Over By Tawes

Dans Mountain Item Deleted

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes withheld action Monday on a controversial bill to require setting of minimum retail prices on liquor in Maryland.

It was in a stack of 39 bills which he pushed aside in signing 116 others into law. He is expected to veto all of the remaining bills, including the liquor measure, before the deadline midnight Wednesday.

But the governor would not discuss the bills Monday. He said veto messages are still being prepared and there are still some legal questions to be settled. "We just want to be sure we're safe," he said.

He asked that an assistant attorney general be assigned to his office tomorrow to go over the measures.

Tawes emphatically denied speculation that he did not want the liquor issue to become involved in the Baltimore City election, to be held Tuesday.

Cuts Rec Funds

Hyman Pressman, who represented large cut-rate liquor stores in opposition to the bill at a hearing before the governor, is a candidate for city comptroller on the Republican ticket. A Tawes veto supporting Pressman's position might be used in the campaign.

Tawes did make one veto public Monday. Using his constitutional powers to eliminate single items in the bond bill financing state capital improvements, he chopped out eight items totaling $1,337,000. This left the total program at $26,239,000.

The legislature will take these cuts up for reconsideration along with vetoes of bills at its next session. Three - fifths majorities will be required in each house to override the governor's objections.

Items deleted included $400,000 added to the $600,000 he had recommended in land acquisition for Gunpowder River Valley State Park; $350,000 for construction of a dormitory at Maryland State College in Princess Anne; $230,000 in land acquisition for General Smallwood State Park; $75,000 for land acquisition and planning a retarded children's home in the Washington metropolitan area; $62,000 for a regional branch of the Bacteriological Health Laboratory at Easton through matching of federal funds; and $35,000 each for an access road and parking area at Dan's Mountain Recreation Area and land acquisition for a buffer zone in Dundalk.

Signs Budget Bills signed by the governor included the $606 million state operating budget; a requirement that cities and counties all have the same fiscal year as the state by July 1, 1966; creation of a state air pollution control council; and an Anne Arundel County bill providing public school bus transportation for parochial and private school students.

He also approved a measure to raise the maximum gross weight of trucks on Maryland highways from 65,000 to 73,280 pounds. The bill had been opposed by the State Roads Commission when it was before the legislature.

Tawes signed all but three of the more than 40 Anne Arundel local bills he had held up at the request of the county commissioners until they could confer with him.

The bills he signed boosted to 903 the number of new laws he has approved from the 1963 session.

His 39 anticipated vetoes will be the highest he has recorded. It is understood that most of the bills will be rejected on legal advice from the attorney general, including those to provide pensions for former legislators and governors.

Some Goodyear Unions Reject Pact Proposal

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A majority of union members failed to ratify the United Rubber Workers union's two-year master contract agreement with the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

Returns from ratification meetings held Sunday at 11 Goodyear plant locals were received at union headquarters Monday. They showed four locals, including the 9,800-member Akron Local 2, rejected the agreement.

A majority of locals and a majority of members is needed for ratification. Seven locals representing 7,965 members gave approval.

The contract agreement is in limbo now," said a union spokesman. "We've got a majority of locals, but not a majority of members. We need both for it to be either rejected or accepted."

More pleasant news came to URW headquarters on the returns of ratification votes at locals of the B. F. Goodrich Co. and Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. Both Akron locals of those companies approved agreements reached in negotiations last month.

"It seems safe to say that Firestone and Goodrich agreements will get approval," the union spokesman said.

Contract agreements with all three rubber companies followed a pattern of 16-cent hourly wage increases for tire plant workers and 13 cents for non-tire workers for two years. Fringe benefits put the worth of the contract gains at 22 to 26 cents an hour for the package.

News Hushing Is Dangerous

A lesson in the futility of secrecy is provided by the strange case of the Guantanamo Bay slaying. What is alleged to have happened is this:

A Cuban named Ruben Lopez, believed to be a Castro agent, was found snooping around U. S. installations at the naval base. Marine Capt. Arthur J. Jackson, a Medal of Honor winner in World War II, was escorting him off the base in accord with instructions when Lopez lunged at the captain. Jackson shot the Cuban. Lt. William A. Szili and others helped him bury the body.

Ultimately word leaked to base officials and Jackson, Szili and two other Marine officers were quietly ousted from the Corps. Base commanders hushed up the case and refused to talk to newsmen about it, though it was the talk of the base.

Now Szili is talking. Cuba may still try to use the incident as a cause celebre, charging the U. S. with "abrogating" the Guantanamo Treaty, but much of the steam of such a charge has been dissipated.

How much better it would have been for the facts to have been told at the time of the slaying in 1961, however. For until they were told, the incident held the potential of embarrassment for the U. S. at a time and place of Cuba's choice.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Speed Is Not The Essence

Just thirty years ago we were in the middle of what our historians call the "hundred days"—meaning the period in which the First New Deal administration jammed through all the crisis legislation which had been prepared by President Roosevelt's Brain Trust when the election campaign was still being fought. By contrast, President Kennedy's experience in getting the legislation he wants must seem like the "hundred years," so slowly does everything now move through Congress.

In thinking back, however, to the days when all those magic letters—NRA, AAA, WPA, CCC—were receiving swift Congressional blessing, the present "hundred year" pace does not particularly suffer from the contrast. For the truth is that most of the legislation of the "hundred days" was sloppily conceived, and its legacies to the present have only served to make certain bad matters worse.

The PWA, the WPA and the CCC were temporary necessities, for some action had to be taken in 1933 to handle the unemployment problem. Their dubious legacy to 1963, however, is that politicians still tend to think in WPA and CCC terms when they should be considering far more fundamental approaches to the business of making an economy expansive enough to keep unemployment at a minimum. For example, when school "drop-outs" increase, throwing young people without skills on the labor market, all that Washington can think of doing is to pick up the drop-out kids and send them off to the woods to mark time for a couple of years. This is pure palliative. The drop-out problem actually starts with defective methods of teaching first and second grade students how to read—and it won't be solved until there is a grassroots revolution in educational theory in all the local school districts. Washington can't solve this sort of problem with money; it can be solved only by local brains.

Luckily for the economy, the Supreme Court tossed out the original NRA and AAA. But the NRA, with its section 7a which guaranteed labor's right to bargain collectively, had its effect on the Wagner Act, which had to be modified by the Taft-Hartley Act. The First New Deal was right when it outlawed union smashing—but it could have done this without saddling the economy with the sort of blunderbuss industry-wide bargaining that has kept both management and the leadership of the unions from thinking in "progress sharing" terms. It has taken labor leaders thirty years to see virtues in the type of profit-sharing contract recently signed by the unions with Kaiser Steel and the American Motors Company.

As for agriculture, the First New Deal approach still bedevils us. Every year the farm mess gets more and more unmanageable. Since 1933 some $50 billion has been spent on attempts to control the crop surplus, and much of this money has been completely wasted. The other day I started to write a column about butter storage—but I quit when I realized I had written the same piece about the same problem fifteen years ago. Nothing had changed in all that time. In writing about farm bureaucracy insanities one has the feeling of the man who tossed a feather into the Grand Canyon of the Colorado and waited to hear if it made a splash. The words pour out, the splash never happens—and, as "control" follows "control" on the farm front, the ingenious farmers invariably find ways of defeating all the expensively financed restraints.

So now the situation has come down to a clear choice between freedom and a new-style agricultural serfdom for the farmer. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman is tired of seeing controls disrupted by fertility. He has resolved to tell all the wheat farmers how much they may plant, how much they may harvest, and how much they may sell. Everything will go by strictly enforced permit if the farm vote on the wheat referendum, scheduled for May 21, goes Freeman's way.

The Freeman program would subject all wheat growers to the decisions of a two-thirds majority. This is "democracy." But if every third farmer is to be told against his wishes what he may or may not do, the day of the individual on the farm is dead.

The seeds of this possibility were sown in the "hundred days" of 1933. So don't weep now when the Congress of 1963 takes its time before passing a bill.

'And Doc—I Keep Hearing Those Wedding Bells'

Did Rockefeller Put Love Before Presidency?

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—Did Governor Rockefeller decide for himself that he cares more for the woman he loves than he does even for the opportunity to win the presidency in 1964?

Nobody in public life with a sole regard for political consequences is supposed to be exercising good judgment if, after divorcing his wife of 31 years and marrying another woman, he insists on making an effort immediately to run for the highest office in the land.

The conclusion is inescapable, therefore, that the nation is witnessing a recurrence of those romantic circumstances which caused Edward VIII to give up the throne he already had because, under the rules and customs of Britain, he found he could not marry a divorced woman and remain king. So in a public address in December 1936 he told why he chose instead "the woman I Love." He has enjoyed in the 27 years since a happiness and satisfaction with life that make the ceremonies and cares of palace life almost irrelevant.

In America, however, the people decide whether a divorced man shall forfeit the presidency. While it now may seem certain that Nelson Rockefeller will not be the Republican nominee in 1964, who is to say that he might not be nominated in 1968 when five years have gone by and the public has had a chance to size up his new life? Mr. Rockefeller will be only 59 years old in 1968. That's not considered old for the presidency. Looking back on the whole roster of presidents from the beginning of the republic, this is a customary age for a first inauguration.

Mr. Rockefeller's term as governor of New York runs through 1966, and, if by that time he has demonstrated in public office that he knows the science of government and can deal with the issues a pre-convention campaign than anything he might try to do now in the fifteen months before the 1964 convention. Maybe the New York governor took all this into account in yielding to the urge to marry at once the woman he loves. Certainly it will be difficult for anyone who tries to evaluate the political effects of the marriage to know how strongly were the human feelings that drew these two persons together. Rumors have been current for weeks that Mrs. Murphy and Governor Rockefeller would be married, but not till the event actually took place last Saturday did the political world really begin to size up how the 1964 presidential-campaign outlook would be changed.

It can be argued that there are several million divorced persons throughout the country and that they resent the implication that somehow they have sinned. This might offset to a large extent the "anti-divorce" vote. It can be contended, too, that the 1964 presidential nomination isn't worth having anyway, as the Kennedy political organization has transformed the national electorate into a kind of Tammany-like machine buttressed by the selective award of political favors involving billions of dollars of government funds distributed largely in the key states with big electoral votes.

The movement, on the other hand, behind Senator Barry Goldwater—which is the biggest single force presented as an alternative to President Kennedy—now will grow stronger. If economic discontent is widespread in 1964, the negative mood toward the administration might rebound to Goldwater's advantage if he is the nominee.

The boom of Governor Romney of Michigan will, of course, get more attention, too, though it is

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

RENOVATIONS—Capitol Hill is still undergoing the most extensive renovation and expansion of modern times. There was the extension of the East Front of the Capitol, the completion of a new Senate Office Building, and a new third House Office Building is nearing completion. A new subway has been built connecting the Senate structure with the Capitol, and another is under construction connecting the new House building with the Capitol.

One would think that all this refurbishing would bring pleasure to the senators and representatives who use the facilities daily, but this not universally the case.

Take Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, the Republican representative from Ohio. When the House was asked to approve a $300,000 item for work on extension of the Capitol, Mrs. Bolton asked for specifics and was told it was for lighting fixtures, and so forth.

"In most instances," she snapped back, "the lighting is twice too strong. In many of the new rooms it is almost intolerable. Some of the other works of the architect in the extension of the Capitol are utterly shocking."

Then Mrs. Bolton really took off in her criticism. She mourned the demise of the historic House's private dining room, and its replacement by what she considers a modern monstrosity.

"Blank walls, no sound conditioning, glaring light, crowded seating," she ticked off, "has transformed a room members enjoyed to a place where they would rather not go. So far I have not been able to discover who conceived the change and who ordered it, although the Speaker, poor man, takes the responsibility."

After Mrs. B. voiced her criticism, the House dutifully approved the additional money.

Liquor Scandals Shake Teetotaling Rockefeller's N. Y. Administration

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Ever since the days of John D. Rockefeller Sr., his family have been temperate, and most of them teetotalers. When his grandson, Nelson, was coordinator of Latin American cultural affairs under Roosevelt, he finally broke with family tradition to the point of serving drinks at a Tarrytown reception for Latin-American diplomats.

Nelson, himself, however, remained most abstemious. It's the irony of fate, therefore, that the biggest scandals that have rocked New York perhaps since the days of Jimmie Walker, have been the liquor license blow-up involving Rockefeller appointees.

The governor himself is not involved, and he was flabbergasted when he learned that his close friend and adviser, Judson Morhouse, had received a fee of $18,000 for getting a liquor license for the Playboy nightclub, which features scantily clad women called "bunnies."

"Why didn't he ask me if he needed $18,000?" exclaimed the surprised and hurt governor. "I could have let him have $18,000 or even $180,000 rather than this."

Gov. Rockefeller at that time did not know that all his friend got was $9,000, because he had to split his fee with a referral attorney in Chicago.

Morhouse, an able and likeable counselor, has now resigned as adviser to the governor and as chairman of the Republican State Committee.

But the rollcall of top Republicans who have been indicted or embroiled continues, with politically-appalling regularity—and with more to come. It all adds up to the fact that Rockefeller, a good governor of New York, was a naive and inept picker of men. It also adds up to more soul-searching by GOP leaders as to whether they want Nelson leading their party as nominee for President in 1964.

Too Much Music

There is nothing the President of the United States hears more than the music of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps bands. Whenever he sits down at an official dinner, sometimes when he dines out at other big Washington dinners, he hears these four service bands, or a detachment of one of them.

Despite this, the President was delighted to help the sale of the commercial recordings by the four service bands, made to promote the National Cultural Center. And when he received the recordings from George R. Marek, vice president of RCA Victor, and Roger L. Stevens, chairman of trustees for the Cultural Center, he remarked:

"I hope everybody will buy and play these records."

"I hear them all the time," replied the President, and let it go at that.

Preventive Cigarette Pill

At a closed-door meeting of the House Appropriations Committee, Dr. Kenneth M. Endicott, director of the National Cancer Institute, came up with a new idea to control cancer among cigarette smokers—a preventive pill.

"There is no doubt in my mind that there is a very strong association between excessive smoking and high incidence of cancer of the lung," he declared. "I just can't believe this is any longer in debate."

Dr. Endicott recalled that the British Parliament enacted a series of laws to reduce tobacco consumption after the Royal Society of Surgeons had condemned the use of tobacco as "an important cause of cancer." He added, however, that the action was "rather temporary" and that the British people "are getting back to their old ways."

U. S. government scientists are attempting to develop research answers along two lines, Dr. Endicott said: (1) removal of the most serious cancer-causing factors from cigarette smoke and (2) determination of why a large percentage of smokers do not get cancer.

"It is perfectly possible in the laboratory to create a situation in which one chemical can have a very powerful effect in producing cancer, and by the addition of another chemical to the mixture you can prevent the cancer," said Dr. Endicott.

"If people are going to persist in smoking, and sometimes I think they probably are, then perhaps we can find a pill they can take with it."

Note—The Kennedy advisory committee on cigarettes has postponed any report until 1964.

Under The Dome

One reason for Richard Nixon's move to New York was that the law-pickings in Los Angeles were slim. Nixon is an international expert, not an expert on California domestic problems; so legal practice in New York should be much more rewarding. Nixon has no present intention of getting into politics as a candidate, but he does want to be a President-maker—just as Tom Dewey put across Ike's nomination in 1952 and thereafter had day-and-night access to the White House.

Miro Cordona, the angry Cuban exile leader, has formed a secret alliance with Republican leaders, will furnish them with information from the Cuban underground to embarrass JFK. Sen. Ken Keating of New York will be the chief Cuban mouthpiece. One reason why Perle Mesta, who made herself famous as the "hostess with the mostes" as Minister to Luxembourg, wasn't invited by JFK to the White House in honor of the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg, was religion. In 1960 Perle was against a Catholic President.

Rich And Loathed

By John Crosby

LONDON.

The British press, some of it anyway, has come off very badly in the Vassall case. William John Christopher Vassall is the homosexual who spied for the Russians from his post as a clerk in the British Admiralty for seven years before being caught and sent to prison where he is now serving an 18-year sentence.

During the uproar, the press here wallowed in speculations, most of which have proved to be totally untrue. One allegation, which was reported even in so respectable a paper as the Observer, as well as the Daily Mirror, Daily Express, and Daily Herald, was that the Admiralty knew there was another spy on the premises for 18 months after the Portland trial. There was no basis for this story.

Far more reprehensible and totally untrue allegations were made against T. G. D. Galbraith, who was driven to resign from his office as Under-Secretary of State for Scotland by the innuendoes that he was a "friend," in the worst possible sense, of the homosexual Vassall, that he protected him at the Admiralty and saw a lot of him elsewhere. The Observer has editorialized: "All the allegations made against Mr. Galbraith were so utterly wild and without foundation that they must make any professional journalist blush to read about them."

The tribunal appointed to inquire into the Vassall case has produced a report which is, I think, a whitewash of the Admiralty, which, it seems to me, ought to have had better sense in its security provisions. But, as far as the misdeeds of the press are concerned, the tribunal has wisely abstained from judgment. "It is to be hoped," said the report with silky British restraint, "that the public itself will make up its mind as to the rights or wrongs of particular publications."

This the public appears to have done only too well. One of the things that has come out of the Vassall case is the shocked discovery by the press at just how thoroughly disliked and distrusted it is by the British public. Several of the newspapers here have been deluged with letters which are overwhelmingly anti-press.

The "popular press" got a brief and rather appalling glimpse of just how unpopular it really is. (Though, I suppose, the press lords would deny this.) In England and to a lesser extent in America, it does seem to me that a newspaper's circulation figures are not at all an accurate reflection of the paper's real popularity or the extent to which it is trusted.

It's quite possible to buy a paper and hate it and disbelieve every word in it. The British are a very literate and intelligent and sensible people. Still, they are not above reading and being titillated by their sensation-mongering popular press of which England possesses possibly the most unsavory examples in the whole world. But even while reading the prurient stuff, it is my guess that the average Briton hates himself for doing it and hates the paper that is appealing to his lowest instincts.

In this sense the British popular press is not popular at all. It's just rich. The British press lord, who is not nearly as preoccupied with being liked as his American counterpart, can always soothe these injuries to his self-esteem by looking at his bank balance.

But the better newspapers—and England, along with some of the world's worst newspapers, also has some of the world's best—deplores its image as reflected in the Vassall case. The Observer laments that it is the fault of the system and lauds the American system.

"In Britain," says the Observer, "the press won its freedom against Parliament and politicians who are still inclined to treat it as an interfering nuisance. In America the press was from the first an ally of the politicians in the fight for independence, and the importance of its function was formally recognized in the First Amendment of the Constitution. So today American journalists, though no less vigorous in their criticisms, or less skeptical of official wisdom, are treated with markedly greater respect and confidence by those in authority than are British journalists."

Well, that's one way of looking at it. On one side of the Atlantic, the press is a nuisance to the authorities; on the other side they're managed by them. And so both sides of the Atlantic, the press seems to be creating almost more news than it's covering.

Multiple Causes For Outbreaks Of Hives

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

Hives (urticaria) is caused most frequently by foods, with fresh berries, spices, chocolate, fish, and nuts heading the list. But there are other origins of these wheals. Many victims waste time trying to find the offender by eliminating one food after another or undergoing skin or blood tests that are of questionable value.

The outbreak may follow inhaling animal dander, perfumes, or chemicals such as DDT. Emotional stress and parasites such as pinworms must be considered. Some individuals break out when they take certain medicines or vaccines and here the cause is obvious.

Physical factors also are important, especially when the eruption comes on after exposure to heat, cold, sunlight, injury, or pressure on the skin. And, to complicate the picture, bacteria play a role in some instances, particularly those confined to focal infections of the teeth or tonsils.

Urticaria is well named because the word means "to burn." At one time the condition was called "nettle rash," which also is apropos. The wheals are red, warm, elevated, itching lesions that assume many sizes and shapes. They often are located under constrictive clothing but may appear elsewhere, including the membranes of the mouth, lips, and throat. Giant internal hives have closed off the windpipe and larynx.

It may be that hives develops along the intestinal tract and that some migraine headaches stem from an urticarial process in the outer lining of the brain. These possibilities are difficult to prove.

Various ointments and drugs are available to relieve burning and itching. The real answer is to prevent recurrences by finding and removing the cause. This is not easy in chronic urticaria of psychosomatic origin; here, resentment or other emotional upset acts as a trigger. Treatment is complicated by the fact that most victims of hives refuse to accept psychic factors as the causative agents in these eruptions.

His dog betrayed him by taking a stand at Slezak's desk, holding a rigid point, and barking like mad. Mrs. Slezak investigated and found inside the desk a two-foot-long Hungarian salami.

GOP Minority In W. Va. Legislature Blocks Quick Action On Welfare Funds

By DONALD F. FANNIN
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The Republican minority — holding out for a welfare investigation "with teeth in it" — thwarted Democratic efforts to complete in one day the work of a special welfare session of the West Virginia Legislature.

Nearly solid Republican votes kept the Legislature from suspending the rules and passing immediately a bill to provide $457,000 needed to keep two major welfare programs from running out of money before June 30.

The crucial test came in both the Senate and the House when the Republicans blocked attempts to get four-fifths of the members present to vote to suspend Constitutional rules and pass the money bill in one day, rather than the normal three days.

All nine Republican senators voted against the proposal to kill it in the upper chamber (23-9). And 22 of the 24 GOP delegates successfully voted to kill a similar motion in the House (75-22). Del. J. F. Deem, R-Ritchie, did not vote and Del. James W. Simonton, R-Wood, joined the Democratic majority.

The Republican opposition arose after the constitutionality of approving a resolution setting up a committee to investigate the operation and financial problems of the welfare department was questioned.

Gov. W. W. Barron, in a seven-minute address to the lawmakers just after they convened, called for the lawmakers to direct interim committees to revive a study of the welfare department's "policies and procedures."

But the only two items included in the governor's "call" authorized the Legislature to pay expenses for their special session and make a supplemental appropriation of $457,000 to keep the relief payments under the Aid to Dependent Children and Work and Training public works program at normal levels through June 30.

Republican lawmakers — and some Democrats, too — immediately said the Legislature could not constitutionally order the welfare study since it was not included in the governor's call.

The ensuing, daylong wrangle sparked numerous recesses while party leaders plotted strategy. The upshot was the blocking for the day of the identical versions of the money bill in both Houses.

They now will be at normal second reading when the Senate convenes at 10 a.m. Tuesday and the House at 2 p.m. Spokesmen said further attempts to suspend the rules would undoubtedly be made again Tuesday.

House Minority Leader George H. Seibert summed up the GOP viewpoint:

"We just don't want to act on the money measure until this question of a welfare study is ironed out. I think we should complete the work Governor Barron has asked us to do."

Other GOP members said the only way the welfare study could be acted on legally would be for Barron to send the lawmakers an amended "call," or an entirely new one.

Senate Minority Leader John Carrigan, R-Marshall, said any welfare study "should have teeth (in the form of subpoena power for the committee) or it will not be effective."

Majority Leader William Moreland, D-Monongalia, attacked the GOP delaying tactics.

After the Republican State Chairman (Howard V. Corcoran) put on an article condemning the welfare department, I felt he was attempting to exploit this problem with the hope of political gain," he said. "However, I hadn't realized he had instructed the boys to pull a binding caucus on us."

Sen. Jack Miller, R-Wood, challenged Moreland's statement. "I did not vote for any binding caucus," he said, "and Howard Corcoran did not instruct me on how to vote in this matter or any other."

Welfare Commissioner W. Bernard Smith spent about an hour and a half answering questions before the House, meeting as a committee of the whole, and was questioned closely by Seibert, Simonton and others.

Smith said he thought the Legislature, his department and the Board of Public Works each "had to share a little of the blame" for the welfare department's current financial plight, which occurred after the 1963 Legislature gave the department only $600,000 of a $1.2 million deficiency allocation to run it through June 30.

But Smith agreed with Del. Carmine Cann, D-Harrison, that the House did all it could by including the $1.2 million in its version of the budget before the figure was cut to $600,000 by a joint confederate committee meeting with the BPW.

A meeting of the interim Joint Committee on Government and Finance was scheduled for Tuesday morning, when a possible compromise on a welfare study probably will be discussed.

Trout Festival To Be Held At Petersburg

Kiwanians Take Lead Sponsoring New Annual Event

PETERSBURG, W. Va. — This town in the heartland of the South Branch Valley has completed preparations for a trout festival to be held on Saturday, May 18. The festival, which is planned to be an annual event, is to be the central part of Grant County's West Virginia Centennial celebration.

Located within less than five miles of the state's two trout hatcheries, the South Branch area has long been known as the trout capital of West Virginia. Its tributary streams, as well as parts of the main stream itself, offer excellent trout fishing and this year stocking has been done more intensively in order that those who are visitors during the trout season will have ample opportunity to have their efforts rewarded.

Trout season will last until Labor Day.

The festival is under the general sponsorship of the Petersburg Kiwanis Club but is actually a community-wide effort.

Present plans call for a giant parade, fly and bait casting contests, with the highlight of the day's festivities being a trout fry to be held at Grant Recreation Park starting at about 5 p.m.

A novel form of competition is being initiated this year in order to create a maximum of interest. This is the number tagging of about 2,500 trout. Those catching trout bearing any of 44 selected numbers will receive awards which are exhibited at a local sporting goods store.

Although the Department of Natural Resources has tagged a large number of trout, those with the lucky numbers will be found in local waters in the following streams or impoundments: North Fork of the South Branch, Spruce Knob Lake, Smoke Hole Area, Warden Lake and Lost River.

Numbers which will entitle the holder to a prize are 5173, 5250, 5262, 5420, 5452, 5622, 5623, 5640, 5660, 5661, 5672, 5681, 5693, 5822, 5831, 5861, 5892, 5893, 6023, 6033, 6042, 6052, 6070, 6121, 6191, 6193, 6231, 6240, 6241, 6260, 6272, 6812, 6822, 6823, 6833, 6840, 6842, 6872, 6882, 6921, 6933, 6940, 6961 and 6971.

In addition to the numbered fish, prizes also will be given for the largest of each species of trout taken which include brown, brook, rainbow and golden. To be placed in competition, fish will be taken to Paul's Sport Shop where weights will be determined and recorded. Those catching the largest of each type will receive grand prizes on or after Labor Day.

The golden trout has created much interest throughout West Virginia and neighboring states and was produced at the local hatchery by Chester Mace, a local resident and fish culturist. About 40,000 have been stocked throughout West Virginia for the current season.

Tours of local scenic and historic points of interest will be conducted during the celebration Saturday, May 18.

Wesleyan College Faculty Supports Teacher Dismissal

BUCKHANNON, W. Va. (UPI) — Wesleyan College President Stanley H. Martin has received the overwhelming support of faculty members in the dismissal of economics professor Harold Hughes.

"The authority to employ and dismiss is within the province of the president of the college," a statement signed by all but three faculty members said. "It is our opinion that Dr. Hughes received every fair consideration."

"It is our considered judgement that there is here no breach of academic freedom," the statement said. "We are convinced that the academic atmosphere of West Virginia Wesleyan College is completely free."

The statement came after a demand by the newly formed Committee for Academic Freedom at the college demanded the ouster of Martin.

Martin said he fired Hughes for failing to present all sides of the conservative-liberal battle, not for Hughes conservative views.

Bobby Layne Retires From Pro Football

Steeler Standout Quitting At 34

DALLAS (AP) — Bobby Layne, the salty old pro who quarterbacked the Detroit Lions and the Pittsburgh Steelers with an iron hand when on the field, has retired.

The announcement came Monday from Steeler Coach Buddy Parker, who earlier urged his quarterback to quit.

"He's had a lot of success. I think it's time to call a stop," said Parker. Earlier the coach said, "All great players must quit some day."

Layne, with 15 years in the National Football League, holds many career passing records.

The 34-year-old blond Texan, a fun-loving spirit who had his troubles with police at times, reached new peaks last Sept. 23 here—the city in which he first knew fame as a high school star.

On that day he shattered the career records for touchdown passes and pass completions.

Against the Dallas Cowboys, Layne threw two scoring passes, breaking a tie of 187 shared by himself and another local hero, Sammy Baugh, formerly of the Washington Redskins and Texas Christian University.

He also went ahead of Baugh in that game with his 1,713th completion. Baugh held the old career mark at 1,709.

The Steelers won from Dallas 30-28.

"He'll be around a long time if he continues to play like that," said Parker at the time. A few months later, he said publicly that he had recommended to Layne that he quit.

Layne played for Highland Park High School of Dallas and then became a national star as a teen-aged tailback at the University of Texas. From there he went to Detroit and later to the Steelers.

When Layne was on the gridiron, it was his show. He disciplined the team members from play to play.

Parker said Monday he received a letter from Layne announcing his retirement.

"I offered him a job here as a coach, but he did not want it," said Parker.

Milwaukee Manager Bragan Will Fine Pitchers For Balks

Spahn, Burdette Conduct 'School' For Brave Hurlers

By DAN HANLEY United Press International

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Manager Bobby Bragan of the Milwaukee Braves told his pitchers Monday it would be to their advantage both on the mound and financially to comply with the controversial balk rule being enforced in the National League this season.

Bragan held a special "school" for his hurlers and had "professors" Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette show the others how to throw without committing a balk. It was also revealed Bragan is fining his hurlers $100 every time a balk is called on them.

Bragan's special instructional class is the latest move by managers in the league to cope with a long-standing baseball rule which had been virtually ignored by umpires until this year. The rule says a balk should be called on a pitcher when he delivers a pitch from a set position without coming to a stop of one full second.

Lefthander Spahn and right-hander Burdette, who haven't had a balk called on them yet during the season, told the others they could do a much better job of holding a runner on base by setting before pitching to the batter. When Bragan asked some of his pitchers why they didn't set, the answers didn't justify risking a balk, he said.

Shaw Commits Five

Bragan began his crackdown after Bob Shaw had five balks called on him in a game against the Chicago Cubs Saturday, setting a major league record and tying another mark. In the three-game series between Milwaukee and Chicago the past weekend, Chicago won all three, there were 11 balks called—10 on the Braves—and balks figured in two decisions.

Shaw, it was learned, was fined $250 or more for his balk performance and when another right-hander, Tony Cloninger, had a balk called on him Sunday, he was fined $100.

Bragan discounted a report he was handing out $25 fines for balks. "That's not enough to make a pitcher straighten himself out. But I think $100 will be."

"I have to find a cure for you," said a very serious Bragan to his pitchers gathered around him for the special workout at an empty County Stadium. "I can get on my knees and beg, but that won't help."

"You've got to learn to pitch properly. The fine shows we mean business. As long as the rule exists and now is being enforced we have to follow it. Will Watch Others

"I want you to know I'm going to make sure every other team follows the rule too."

"I don't enjoy taking your money and you don't enjoy paying it. So let's do things right."

Bragan said Walter O'Malley and Walter Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers were responsible for having the balk rule enforced because they thought it would be to the advantage of their "jackrabbits" runners like stolen base king Maury Wills.

Spahn said the league had a similar crackdown on balks 10 years ago.

Yankees Belt Detroit, 10-3

DETROIT (UPI) — The New York Yankees went to their biggest batting spree of the season Monday night with a 15-hit barrage, including home runs by Mickey Mantle and Tom Tresh, to crush the Detroit Tigers 10-3.

The victory moved the Yankees into a percentage tie with first-place Kansas City, which lost to Chicago. However, Kansas City still holds a half-game edge.

It was a close battle for six innings between Whitey Ford and Hank Aguirre with New York holding a 4-3 edge. But Mantle, who enjoyed a perfect night at the plate, slammed a two-run homer in the seventh to make it 6-3.

Tresh cracked a three-run homer into the right field upper deck to climax a four-run eighth inning off reliever Paul Foytack.

The 15 hits and 10 runs were both highs for the Yankees this year. Mantle, Tresh and Bobby Richardson each collected three hits while Tresh and Mantle each batted in three runs and Richardson knocked in two.

New York 10, Detroit 3, 10-15 2
Detroit 10, New York 3, 3-10 3
Ford, Boston (7) and Howard Aguirre, Foytack (6), Egan (5) and Triandis, Winner — Ford (3-2), Loser — Aguirre (3-3), HR — Mantle, Tresh.

Robinson, a native of Little Rock, Ark., hit .303, with 23 home runs and 86 runs batted in, while leading the league in fielding at his position.

E. E. "Rip" Miller, assistant athletic director at the Naval Academy and one of the "Seven Mules" who played in the line at Notre Dame in front of the "Four Horsemen," was the principal speaker.

Fire Damages Phone Building At Levels, W. Va.

Arsonists Blamed In Weekend Blaze

Arsonists apparently were at work over the weekend in the vicinity of Levels, W. Va., where representatives of the General Telephone Company of the South-east discovered yesterday that a fire had occurred over the weekend in the interior of the central office building of the company at Levels.

The fire apparently was started by unidentified persons who poured oil through the ventilator of the fire-proof building and then dropped lighted matches onto the oil.

Only limited damage was done because a large metal cabinet was located in the path of the oil and fire, a company spokesman said.

In addition, a glass block was broken out of the front wall of the building, oil poured through the hole and ignited. The fire was extinguished when the oil was consumed.

Before the fire stopped, a number of company records had been destroyed or singed. Soot and oil scum covered the interior of the building and its contents, a company spokesman said.

No arrest had been made in the case last night.

This was another in a series of violent acts that have occurred since employees of the company went on strike April 8. There have been about four meetings with a mediator but little progress toward settlement has been made.

On Saturday night a 100-pair cable was cut west of Romney cutting off much of the South Branch Valley of West Virginia from phone service for about 24 hours. Affected were Petersburg, Moorefield, Burlington and Maysville.

Some four miles west of Romney a pole was chopped down on or about April 29.

No convictions have resulted from any of these acts of violence although one man was questioned in one case.

Fire Equipment Service Tests To Begin Today

The Cumberland Fire Department will begin service tests of its motorized equipment today, according to Fire Chief Virgil Parker.

The tests, he said, will begin today at 9:30 a. m. at the Constitution Park swimming pool and will be completed tomorrow.

Chief Parker said the seven first and second line pumps and the ladder truck will be put through the series of tests laid down by the Maryland Fire Rating Bureau.

Pumps will be put through tests of their drafting ability and capacity to maintain water pressure under conditions set forth by the fire rating bureau.

The department's ladder truck, which is often used as a water tower, will also be tested.

Fire fighting equipment, including fog nozzles, will get operating tests during the program.

Chief Parker said that each piece of hose used by the department will be tested to make sure it will stand up under its rated capacity.

It will take about two weeks, he said, to complete this phase of the program.

Robert C. Long, assistant fire chief and department training officer, will be in charge of the tests.

Subdivision Rule Study Begins Here

Report Upcoming On Bond Practices

Members of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission last night reached general agreement on the program of improvements which would be provided in subdivisions in the city but failed to reach common ground on administrative details.

The chief problem appeared to be that of working out regulations which would protect the city in future development without making the rules so stringent they would stifle developments.

One suggestion to the financial problems facing developers was that subdividers be allowed to place funds for improvements in escrow as an alternative to putting up bonds to guarantee that improvements will be made.

John R. Joyner, resident planner for the firm of Blair and Stein Associates, consultants for the commission, reported he will make a detailed study of existing practices on the posting of bonds by developers to guarantee that improvements will be completed.

He will report back at the next meeting of the commission on May 21 at 7:30 p. m.

The commission noted that the Allegany County Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a hearing on its proposed subdivision regulations next Tuesday night.

Results of that meeting will be closely followed by the commission.

One reason for the city's interest is that the commission is holding in abeyance its right under existing law to exercise extra territorial control over subdivisions within a one-mile limit.

The commission discussed extra territorial subdivision control issue briefly last night and was divided on the issue.

Navy To Rebuild Facilities In ABL Blast

Announcement Clarifies Status

The Navy said yesterday it plans to rebuild facilities recently destroyed by explosion at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at Rocket Center, W. Va.

It said that "subject to prior approval by the Secretary of the Navy—the Navy does plan to rebuild facilities at the laboratory to provide support for current rocket motor development programs and those already planned for the next year."

Temporary Removal Seen

"If it becomes necessary for the demand of the Polaris flight test development program while rebuilding of ABL facilities is in process, some work may be temporarily performed at Hercules Powder Company plant at Bacchus, Utah."

The Bacchus plant produces second stage motors for the A-2 model of the Polaris and is to be ultimately produce second stages for the advanced A-3 Polaris now being tested.

The Navy noted there has been a previously announced plan to reduce the number of employees at ABL, but said that all are Hercules employees, except for a small Navy staff. Therefore, the Navy said, Hercules should be the one to answer any questions about possible changes in the plan to cut the work force from 3,200 to 2,000.

Damage Estimate Not Given

The Naval installation was extensively damaged by an earth-shaking blast on April 27.

Spokesmen for Hercules Powder Company said damage would "run into thousands of dollars," however no exact figure of the damage was ever given.

Last weekend officials at ABL announced emergency measures were taken as the result of the explosion to step up the decrease in the work force which had been underway since the first of the year.

John C. Foster, plant manager, said last week "quite obviously this reduction would be substantial" but not as great as some figures which had been rumored.

Mr. Foster said some employees have been transferred to other Hercules Powder Company plants and some people to the Hercules plant at Bacchus, Utah, with full intention that they would continue to do the same work and would come back to ABL when the situation demanded.

Small Local Girl "Critically" Hurt

The girl, Christie Ann Canfield, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Canfield, 229 Arch Street, was admitted to Memorial Hospital with severe head injuries.

The mother of the small girl told hospital attendants she was unaware her daughter had fallen out of the window until a neighbor told her the child was lying along side of the house.

The injured youngster was unconscious when admitted to the hospital for X-rays and observation.

Late last night the injured girl was rushed to University Hospital, Baltimore, by McDonald Ambulance Service.

Reactivated Civil War Units Will Attend Ball

Members of the Cumberland Continentals and the Old German Artillery, Cumberland reactivated Civil War military units, will attend the Fourth Annual Blue-Gray Military Ball Saturday in Sharpsburg.

Twenty local couples of the two units are planning to attend the ball and it is estimated approximately 200 couples, representing various Union and Confederate reactivated units from Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Delaware will attend.

Persons who attend must be associated with some Civil War phase of the Centennial. Both men and women also must wear the proper apparel of the 1860's.

There are tentative plans that the last Centennial Military Ball may be held in the Cumberland area in March or April 1965.

The two local units are acting as coordinators in conjunction with the Allegany County Civil War Centennial to re-enact the Battle of Folsk's Mill in Cumberland in August. Over 500 men and 12 cannons are committed to the 99th anniversary of the battle.

Vernon A. Crable, RD 1, Locust Grove, has been elected commander of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Commander Crable is a combat veteran of World War II and served in the Pacific Theatre with the 38th Division during the liberation of the Philippines and earlier island engagements. He is employed at the Celanese plant here in textile engineering and in October will complete 30 years with the company.

Elected to serve with Mr. Crable are, Robert Gilpin, senior vice commander; Leroy Hare, junior vice commander; James Darling, Quartermaster; George Spies, chaplain; Calvin McDonald, judge advocate; Dr. Paul Castelle, surgeon; and William Linn, three-year trustee. Holdover trustees are John D. Diehl, two years and Verner J. Winner, one year.

Emphasis, he said is also to be placed upon all phases of community service and service to the veteran and veterans' families. "Much needs to be done in the area of public and community service," he said.

Mr. Crable has appointed Mr. Winner as chairman to arrange for the installation ceremony and also appointed Paul W. Moore assistant chairman. As has been the custom for many years, a joint installation program will be held with the Ladies Auxiliary. Tentative date is May 18 at the post home at 7:30 p. m.

New Traffic Signal On Baltimore St.

Advance Green Light For Mechanic St.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan announced yesterday new lane control traffic lights have been installed at the intersection of Baltimore and Mechanic streets.

Work on the new traffic signals was completed Sunday by Wes-Mar Communications Company.

The lights, which are similar to those at the intersection of Baltimore and Centre streets, give an advance green light for traffic waiting to turn south on South Mechanic Street.

Both lanes of traffic traveling north on Baltimore Street will have red lights while the advance green light is on for southbound traffic.

The inside lane of traffic headed toward the West Side will not be affected by the new light and will have a normal green light when the signal changes.

Sgt. E. Gordon Hite, who is in charge of the traffic bureau, said the traffic pattern at the Baltimore and Mechanic street intersection is being studied to determine the best possible time interval for the advance green signal. As soon as the survey is completed, the new signal will be adjusted again.

Police officers who were working traffic at the intersection of Baltimore and Mechanic streets yesterday said the light was working smoothly and there were apparently no problems with the new system.

Some time ago new lights were placed at Baltimore and Centre streets which allows traffic turning west on North Centre Street to move before traffic headed west on Baltimore Street.

Pullen To Meet Tomorrow With FSTC Teachers

To Rule On Meeting With Trustees Board

BALTIMORE (AP) — The four English professors whose contracts have not been renewed for the next year by Frostburg Teachers College will be given a chance to present their case Wednesday.

The teachers and their attorney, Fred Weigal of Baltimore, are scheduled to meet with Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., a member of the State College Board of Trustees, and the counsel for the board, Asst. Atty. Gen. James P. Garland. Dr. Pullen also is state superintendent of schools.

The teachers say their dismissal violated academic freedom because the reason for the college's action was their liberal views and insistence upon using three controversial novels in their classes.

R. Bowen Hardesty, president of Frostburg, denied the action violated academic freedom. He gave the reason for the dismissals as immaturity.

If Dr. Pullen decides that their case has merit, the board of trustees may consider the matter at a public hearing.

The teachers are Dr. Edmund S. Skellings, associate professor and possessor of the only Ph.D. in the Frostburg English Department; John Cole, Francis Ireland and Norris Merchant.
